

Statement from Civil Society Organisations and Individuals on NCPCR's Blanket Recommendation for Restoration of Children in Child Care Institutions

5 October 2020

We, the undersigned civil society organisations, networks, groups, and individuals, working on issues concerning human rights of children and National Human Rights Institutions, condemn the letter issued by the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR), requiring all District Magistrates in Tamil Nadu, Karnataka, Telangana, Maharashtra, Andhra Pradesh, Kerala, Meghalaya and Mizoram to restore and repatriate all children living in Child Care Institutions (CCIs),¹ except Specialised Adoption Agencies (SAA) and Observation Homes.

Despite our firm belief that institutionalisation must be the last resort, we wish to state that removing children from institutional care, irrespective of regard for their peculiar and particular circumstances and bypassing due process will inevitably push many children into situations of greater risk of violence, abuse, neglect, and exploitation.

It is a well-established fact that children come back into the juvenile justice system with increased vulnerabilities if restored to an abusive family or a situation where the family is unable to provide due care and protection for reasons beyond their control. Unfortunately, the letter comes at a time when the COVID-19 pandemic has rendered children and families even more vulnerable. In the wake of COVID-19 pandemic, families have been pushed beyond the margins - from food security to housing and livelihood, their problems, including mental health challenges, have increased manifold. Restoring children to such a situation without considering the views of children and their families and without an assessment cannot be in their best interest.

We are of the firm view that:

(1) NCPCR's Recommendations are contrary to the purpose, principles, and spirit of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015

De-institutionalisation is an important intervention for children living in CCIs and must be taken with careful planning and utmost care through an individualized approach. By selectively citing the principles of institutionalisation as a measure of last resort and repatriation and restoration in support of its exercise of suo motu cognizance, the NCPCR violates the objectives of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (JJ Act, 2015) and fails to consider the other fundamental principles of best interest of children, safety and participation.

- (a) By requiring the District Magistrates to restore all children living in CCIs immediately, the NCPCR has failed to respect the primary objective of the JJ Act, 2015, which is to ensure an individualized child-friendly approach while determining specific interventions for care, protection, rehabilitation and reintegration of each child in the juvenile justice system. The definition of child friendly in Section 2(15), JJ Act, 2015, places a responsibility on all functionaries and authorities to ensure that they also act in the ‘best interest of the child’. Further Section 2(9), JJ Act provides the definition of “best interest” as –‘the basis for any decision taken regarding the child, to ensure fulfilment of his basic rights and needs, identity, social well-being and physical, emotional and intellectual development’. Read together, these provisions obligate the NCPCR to ensure that all rights of all children in the child protection system are respected, protected and fulfilled. The arbitrary recommendation of the NCPCR to immediately restore and repatriate all children in CCIs in these select States, in such haste without respecting the jurisdiction of Child Welfare Committees empowered to pass legally binding orders in the best interest of each child is a serious violation of the JJ Act, 2015 and administrative law.

- (b) The NCPCR’s “one size fits all” approach and its assumption that restoration is the only option belies the experiences of children who have been subjected to physical and sexual violence, neglect and exploitation within the family. There is enough evidence to prove that children are not safe within their own families. A study by UNICEF conducted in two districts each in Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh and Odisha, three districts in Rajasthan and four districts in Maharashtra in 2019 indicates 30 different forms of physical and verbal abuse used by Indian parents on children as young as 0 to 6 years as a disciplining measure.² The Crime in India report, 2019 suggests 8.7 per cent of cases of sexual abuse by known offenders are by family members.³ The Jena Committee report found 5,291 children in the age group of 0-6 years and 1,78,885 in the age group of 7-18 years in CCIs/Homes whose parents were ‘unfit or incapacitated to take care’.⁴ Many children residing in a CCI are victims of their circumstances and placed in institutions until they can be suitably rehabilitated and reintegrated on the basis of individual care plans that vary from child to child.
- (c) While non-institutional care is an important objective, blanket recommendations by the NCPCR to release and restore all children residing in CCIs ignores the need for and recognition of institutional care as a disposition available under law, especially when restoration to the family is not in the child’s best interest. Many children are placed in CCIs for long term care based on orders passed by Child Welfare Committees (CWCs) after due inquiry, and therefore not all can be restored to their biological families or placed in alternative care.
- (d) Such decisions cannot be made without taking into consideration children’s views and it is imperative that children who do not wish to return to their families for any reason are not sent back to show compliance with such recommendations.

(2) NCPCR has bypassed and undermined the jurisdiction, powers, and functions, of the Child Welfare Committees established under the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015

Through its recommendations, the NCPCR has undermined the jurisdiction of Child Welfare Committees (CWCs), the statutory authority vested with the power to conduct independent inquiries and determine the rehabilitation and social reintegration of children in need of care and protection (CNCP).

- a) As the premier human rights institution for monitoring the protection and promotion of child rights in India, it is imperative for the NCPCR to monitor the implementation of the JJ Act, 2015. NCPCR's letter, however, reflects a blatant disregard of the provisions of this Act, and the authority of the Child Welfare Committees established under the said Act.
- b) Section 1(4), JJ Act, 2015 implies that this Act overrides any other law in force with regard to decisions related to restoration, rehabilitation and reintegration of CNCP. Such decisions therefore cannot be made by the District Magistrate or any other authority except the CWC.
- c) Under Section 29, JJ Act, 2015, the Child Welfare Committee (CWC), a statutory authority established in every district, is vested with the "authority to dispose of cases for the care, protection, treatment, development and rehabilitation of children in need of care and protection". The recommendation issued to the District Magistrates by the NCPCR reduces production of such children before the CWCs to a mere formality and takes away the discretion of the CWCs in deciding for a child as per established rules.
- d) It must be noted that even the Supreme Court of India, while taking cognizance of the difficulties imposed by the COVID-19 pandemic in Re: Contagion of COVID-19 virus in Children Protection Homes, recognised the authority of CWCs to decide on this matter and accordingly issued guidelines for their safety in the CCIs. The NCPCR's recommendations are not just in violation of the JJ Act, 2015 but also the Supreme Court's order.

(3) Recommendations ignore the need for preparedness of families and alternative care measures and the larger issue of systemic failures

Due diligence calls for preparedness of children, families and the child protection system. The NCPCR has ignored this completely in making far-fetched recommendations to be implemented in haste.

- a) There is no mention of preparing children and their families for restoration nor for ensuring that the alternative care system has the capacity to support children who can be restored, without subjecting them to greater distress. Individual care plans are an essential part of restoration orders and contain a pre-release and post-release component, emphasising not just the significance of individualised intervention but also preparedness for restoration and follow-up, which will receive a setback if a blanket restoration drive is carried out in the manner indicated in the letter.
- b) Strengthening the system has been a continuous demand and call for adequate resources. The child protection sector received only 0.06 per cent of the Union Budget in the year 2020-21, a reduction of 0.01 percentage points from the previous year.⁵ DCPUs are unable to function at full capacity for various reasons, including shortage of personnel as vacancies remain unfilled. The COVID-19 pandemic has added further pressure and practical difficulties in carrying out the required tasks. The problem is more systemic and not just about the functioning of CCIs. The NCPCR has failed to see that children end up bearing the brunt of systemic failures.

- c) A January 2019 report by NALSA indicates that state level data bases of various services, including medical and counselling centres, de-addiction centres, hospitals, education facilities, apprenticeship and vocational training programmes etc., are not fully maintained by the State Child Protection Societies and District Child Protection Units.⁶ Clearly, connecting families to social security and welfare schemes, connecting children to neighbourhood schools and such other measures envisaged by the NCPCR require a significant investment in building the capacity of the system and its officers to undertake such an exercise. Much work is required on the ground to ensure that the restoration measures do not fail children by placing them at greater risk of harm, now or in the future and that such measures are undertaken based in individualized inquiries for each child in their best interest.

(4) NCPCR has exceeded its jurisdiction, mandate, and powers of inquiry under the Commissions for Protection of Child Rights Act, 2005 (CPCR Act)

Through this order, the NCPCR has exceeded its mandate and has also displayed scant regard for the procedures for inquiry laid down in the CPCR Act and bypassed State Governments by addressing recommendation directly to District Magistrates.

- a) The NCPCR derives its mandate, powers and functions under the CPCR Act and NCPCR Rules, 2006. Its principal mandate is to monitor implementation of laws, policies, and programmes for children, examine whether they are in consonance with child rights enshrined in the Constitution of India and the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, 1989, and make recommendations to ensure the protection and promotion of child rights.
- b) The NCPCR has taken suo motu cognizance under Section 13(1)(j), CPCR Act “to ensure a thorough implementation of Principle XII and XIII of Section 3 of the JJ Act, 2015.” The NCPCR relies on a social audit of CCIs, stated to have brought to their notice certain “pitiable conditions of children in these CCIs.” No specific violations are specified and it is also not clear whether any notice was given to State Governments to reply to the issues arising from the violations identified during the social audit.
- c) In NDTV Imagine v. NCPCR,⁷ the Delhi High Court held that “There appears to be no power vested in the NCPCR to pass an ex parte order... The very nature of the power under Section 14 envisages the issuance of a prior notice followed by an inquiry. The power under Section 15 CPCR Act can be exercised only upon completion of an inquiry.” In a display of scant regard for the provisions of the CPCR Act and this judgement, the NCPCR appears to have made recommendations without completing the inquiry process. By doing so, the NCPCR has undermined the legitimacy of human rights institutions and violated the procedures established under the CPCR Act for inquiries and recommendations.

⁷ WP(C) 12142 of 2009 and CM APPL No. 12335/09 order dated 15.03.2010.

- d) The letter raises several concerns about the functioning of the Commission. It is addressed directly to District Magistrates and the concerned State Governments, who are responsible for the implementation of the JJ Act, 2015 are bypassed. Alarming, it does not bear the signature of any of the sitting members of the Commission or the Chairperson and is instead signed by a Senior Consultant in the Legal Division of the NCPCR. The CPCR Act does not envisage recommendations being addressed to concerned authorities or the government by non-office bearers and the NCPCR's letter raises questions about the appropriateness of such delegation of power.

In the light of the above concerns, we the undersigned:

1. Strongly condemn this letter from the NCPCR and demand immediate withdrawal of the said letter;
2. Demand that the report on the social audit of CCIs be made available on the NCPCR's website immediately and inputs be invited from various stakeholders including children on improving the functioning of CCIs;
3. Emphasise that the principles and procedures related to restoration of children in the juvenile justice system have to be adhered to and applied based on procedures provided under the JJ Act, 2015 and Rules as applicable in each State. A monitoring authority like the NCPCR cannot usurp executive functions or make recommendations that are contrary to the JJ Act, 2015 and the CPCR Act, 2005;
4. Urge all State Governments to ensure adequate staff and resources to enable adherence to the JJ Act, 2015, by CWCs, so that children in CCIs are restored only after an inquiry by the CWC based on the social investigation report, individual care plan, and after taking into consideration children's views and reports prepared by the counsellors, social workers or welfare officers in the CCIs or from experts or an NGO authorized to work with the District Child Protection Units or the respective CCI;
5. Urge the Ministry of Women and Child Development and Parliament to ensure that all reports of the NCPCR pertaining to matters of special significance and security of children are placed before them for suitable action and released in the public domain;
6. Further urge the Ministry of Women and Child Development to treat the social audit report mentioned in the letter as a Special Report of the Commission under Section 16 of the CPCR Act, 2005, which should be laid before each House of Parliament.
